

MICHAEL WINDFUHR (ED.)

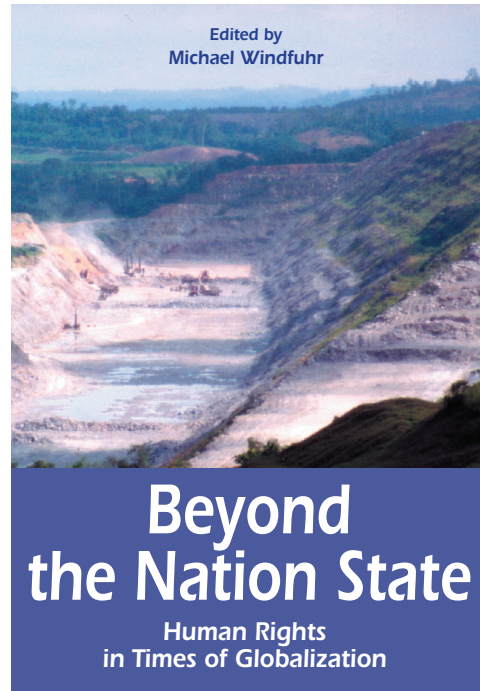

Beyond the Nation State

Human Rights in Times of Globalization

ISBN 91-973739-4-X

Human Rights have become one of the central reference points for national and international politics. They are essential for any meaningful strategy aimed at holding governments accountable to internationally agreed minimum standards of state behaviour.

This book analyses the different forms of involvement of multilateral institutions in the promotion and protection of all human rights, with a focus on economic, social and cultural rights. It brings together the analyses of experts from different regions of the world and with different backgrounds. Amongst them are leading human rights academics, experts working in international human rights organisations and practitioners working in multilateral institutions. The contributions give an overview over the ground covered in the last years in the mainstreaming of human rights in the work of multilateral institutions.
